Laura Schroff and Alex Tresniowski

BACKGROUND

Laura Schroff and Maurice Mazyck had been friends for 15 years when he gave the final toast at the celebration of her 50th birthday. Maurice's words, and Laura's reaction to them, reveal what each had gained from their long friendship.

- 1 Then came the final toast. The speaker was in a sharp black tuxedo with spectacular black-and-white shoes, and his wife was in a stunning navy blue gown, her hair swept up. Nearly everyone in the room had met him or at least knew his story, and so everyone was excited to see him and hear him speak. He kissed his wife, walked up and took the microphone, and began his toast.
- 2 “Laurie, where can I start,” Maurice began. “We met . . . the way we met was so special to me. I was a young boy on the street with barely nothing, and I was very hungry that day and I asked this lady, ‘Miss, can you spare some change?’ And she walked away. And then she stopped. She was in the middle of the street—she almost got hit—and she looked and came back and took me to McDonald’s. We ate and then walked around Central Park; she took me to Haagen-Dazs and then we played some games.
- 3 “You know, at that moment she saved my life. ‘Cause I was going down the wrong road, the wrong hill, and, you know, my mother—bless her soul, my mother died—and the Lord sent me an angel. And my angel was Laurie.
- 4 “Without you,” Maurice said, raising his glass, “I could not be the man I am today.”
- 5 I was so incredibly moved when I heard Maurice say I saved his life. Heck, I nearly lost it throughout his whole darn toast. Whenever I hear someone tell me how lucky Maurice is to have met me, I have to stop them and correct them. The truth is that the lucky one is me.

- 6 Maurice taught me so many things; I can't possibly list them all. He taught me how to live. He taught me one of the most important lessons a person can hope to learn—he taught me to be grateful for what I have. He taught me about resilience, courage, perseverance, and about the special strength that comes from overcoming adversity. He taught me the true value of money, the real meaning of lunch in a brown paper bag, the importance of a silly ritual like baking cookies. He taught me, more than I ever taught him, what it means to be a friend.
- 7 Everything I ever gave to Maurice, he gave back to me tenfold. Every meal, every shirt, every bike or toothbrush, was matched by Maurice with a more genuine appreciation than I have ever known. Every hand I ever lent him was returned with a hug; every kindness was paid back with an impossibly optimistic smile. If love is the greatest gift of all—and I believe it is—then the greatest privilege of all is to be able to love someone. Maurice appeared out of nowhere and allowed me to love him, and for that, I simply can never thank him enough. His generosity of spirit continues to astound me, and to this day my relationship with him is the relationship I am most proud of in my life. 🐾

Close Read the Text

1. The model, from paragraph 1 of the essay, shows two sample annotations, along with questions and conclusions. Close read the passage, and find another detail to annotate. Then, write a question and your conclusion.

ANNOTATE: This phrase has unusual word order.

QUESTION: Why did the author choose to put the verb before the noun?

CONCLUDE: Using this word order makes the sentence seem more formal, which suits the setting of the scene.

ANNOTATE: The author uses vivid language here.

QUESTION: Why does the author provide so much detail about the speaker and his wife?

CONCLUDE: These details emphasize that Maurice has become successful.

Then came the final toast. The speaker was in a sharp black tuxedo with spectacular black-and-white shoes, and his wife was in a stunning navy blue gown, her hair swept up.

2. For more practice, go back into the text and complete the close-read notes.

Notebook Respond to these questions.

1. Analyze In the first paragraph of the excerpt from her memoir, Laura Schroff gives the reader a positive impression of Maurice. Which of her word choices contribute most to this positive tone?
2. Draw Conclusions In his toast, Maurice says that when he asked Laura for spare change, at first she walked past him. Then, she stopped in the middle of the street, almost got hit by a car, and then walked back to him. Why do you think Laura turned around?
3. Interpret In paragraph 7, Laura says, “Everything I ever gave to Maurice, he gave back to me tenfold.” What does this statement suggest about her friendship with Maurice?
4. Make Inferences Why do you think Maurice gave the final toast?
5. Essential Question: *What can one generation learn from another? How did reading this excerpt affect your understanding of how people from different generations can learn from one another?

STANDARDS

Reading Informational Text
Determine an author’s point of view or purpose in a text and analyze how the author distinguishes his or her position from that of others.

Analyze Craft and Structure

Narrative Point of View An Invisible Thread is a memoir written from the first-person point of view. You can tell a work of nonfiction is written from the first-person point of view by looking for the following clues.

- The author uses the pronoun I to refer to himself or herself.
- The author is involved in the events being described.
- Authors often use direct quotations, or a person’s exact words, to reflect the views of other people involved in the narrative.

Memoirs are usually written from the first-person point of view. Authors of memoirs use the first-person point of view because they are describing events and experiences in their own lives—both what happened as well as personal reactions and emotions.

Practice

 Notebook Respond to these questions.

1. Record two examples of first-person point of view in paragraphs 5–7 of the text. Rewrite each example to change the point of view to third person by using the pronoun she. An example is shown.

Example: “I was so incredibly moved when I heard Maurice say I saved his life.”
She was so incredibly moved when she heard Maurice say she saved his life.

Concept Vocabulary

resilience perseverance generosity

Why These Words? These concept vocabulary words show positive qualities or personality traits. Maurice and Laura demonstrate these qualities in their relationship with each other. For example, the way Maurice overcomes adversity teaches Laura about resilience and perseverance. Notice that both of these words show positive aspects of Maurice’s personality.

1. How does the concept vocabulary sharpen your understanding of how both Laura and Maurice benefited from their relationship?
2. What other words in the selection connect to the concept of positive personality traits?

Practice

 Notebook The concept vocabulary words appear in the excerpt from An Invisible Thread.

1. Use each word in a sentence that demonstrates your understanding of the word’s meaning.
2. Work with a partner, and take turns coming up with as many synonyms, or words with similar meanings, and antonyms, or words with opposite meanings, as you can for each concept vocabulary word.

Word Study

Latin Suffix: -ity The Latin suffix -ity means the “state, quality, or condition of.” In the selection, the author refers to Maurice’s “generosity of spirit.”

1. Explain how the suffix -ity contributes to the meaning of the concept vocabulary word generosity.
2. Look at paragraph 6, and find another word that uses the suffix -ity. Identify the base word that was combined with the suffix. Write a definition for that word.

STANDARDS

Language

- Demonstrate command of the conventions of standard English capitalization, punctuation, and spelling when writing.
 - a. Use a comma to separate coordinate adjectives.
- Determine or clarify the meaning of unknown and multiple-meaning words and phrases based on grade 7 reading and content, choosing flexibly from a range of strategies.
 - b. Use common, grade-appropriate Greek or Latin affixes and roots as clues to the meaning of a word.
- Demonstrate understanding of figurative language, word relationships, and nuances in word meanings.
 - b. Use the relationship between particular words to better understand each of the words.

Conventions

Adjectives An adjective is a word that modifies or describes a noun or pronoun. Adjectives may answer the question What kind? How many? Which one? or Whose? Possessive nouns and pronouns are used as adjectives to answer the question Whose?

What kind?	The young boy had a genuine smile.	Which one?	Have you read that book?
How many?	They talked for fifty minutes.	Whose?	I greatly admired Maurice's speech.

Two or More Adjectives Coordinate adjectives are two or more adjectives that modify the same noun and are separated by a comma. You can tell whether adjectives are coordinate if the word and could be used in place of the comma and you could reverse the adjectives.

Cumulative adjectives also modify the same noun, but they are not separated by a comma. Cumulative adjectives cannot be reversed.

COORDINATE ADJECTIVES	CUMULATIVE ADJECTIVES
They became lifelong, devoted friends. You could say: They became devoted and lifelong friends.	She wore a light blue sweater. (She wore a blue light sweater does not mean the same thing.)

Read It

Identify the adjectives in each sentence, and name the nouns they modify. Then tell whether the adjectives are coordinate or cumulative and explain why.

1. Maurice gave an emotional, heartfelt speech.
2. His warm good nature inspired many listeners.
3. The book teaches many valuable life lessons.

Write It

The original sentence in the example below was revised by adding two adjectives. Review the example, and then add two adjectives to each practice sentence. Separate the adjectives with commas if needed.

EXAMPLE Original: Laura wrote a memoir. Revision: Laura wrote an unforgettable personal memoir.

1. Maurice shared a story with the audience.
2. Laura wore a dress.

 Notebook Write a paragraph describing Laura and Maurice's relationship. Include at least one pair of coordinate and one pair of cumulative adjectives.
